To whom it may concern,

I have been Taylor Brooks's manager at Brightwater Labs for the past five years, and I recommend Taylor without reservation for any product design role.

Taylor designed our bill-forecast feature, which 120,000 renters now use every month. It started as Taylor's college capstone; Taylor brought the research with them, tested the idea with our users, and shipped it with two engineers in one quarter. Taylor also led our first accessibility audit, which found and fixed 140 issues across our iOS and Android apps, and has mentored two junior designers on our team.

Engineers seek Taylor out before they start building, because Taylor's specifications answer their questions before they ask them. Taylor is calm in reviews, precise with data, and generous with credit.

Please contact me with any questions.
